( Pontus Hulten ) (Detail of painting and Ture Sjolander below). 2004 Moderna Museet reports that the painting is destroyed. As far as one can understand purposely destroyed by the "Museum ". The Museum was offered the pioneering art work TIME (below) as a donation from a private collector 2004 as a replacement of the badly stored and destroyed painting from 1966. Moderna Museet did not want to receive the donation and decided to remain silent. and a restoration of the destroyed painting is not even mentioned! WORLD NEWS 2011. Shameless Update: Reproduction of Automatic Light Painting on Canvas with a Coin. and today March 17 - 2004 the Museum of Modern Art/MODERNA MUSEET is reporting that the Painting is in a mint condition This page was last updated: February 15, 2014. Steina and Woody Vasulka. Below, reserved space for reproduction of Ture Sjolander's final. art work/ installation from 1965/66, promised by Moderna Museet. Description of Ture Sjolander's art work/installation:.. (comming up as soon the photograph is taken by MM). The very brief description:.. SilkScreen print on canvas - 166,5 x 148.5 cm - with a projector with 80 dia-slides and a metal coin picturing Ture Sjolander, to start the projection on the canvas. The income from the coin should go as charity to the blind people. Never implemented by the Museum. The first agreement between Ture Sjolander and Pontus Hulten was that the painting should be displayed out door as a flag on the museum as Sjolander opposed indoors "exhibition" Hulten liked the concept but after his investigation it was shown that the land owner for the museum protested as it was at military land/the Marines, and only national flags or military flags by law was permitted on the ground. Finally Ture Sjolander did agree to take the painting indoors under the condition that the coin and the machine was made/produced by the museum and that the income from the picture machine should go to the blind people in Sweden. The coin should be purchased together with the entrance fee by visitors. Thereof the title of the painting/installations. Click on the picture !
